"And now I have a tale of fearful horrors to tell you of what happened at Allahabad. God grant it may be exaggerated; I fear it is too true. Let it stir up our English friends to send us, with the utmost expedition, the troops we so urgently require. On Saturday evening last the 8d Oude Cavalry and 6th Native Infantry rose, and destroyed the bridge of boats, and murdered every European they could find. Out of 17 officers at mess at 9.30, 14 of them were butchered by 9.40 by the mutineers and messguard. And this is a regiment that volunteered to go against the Delhi rebels. Many of the poor residents had left the fort, on account of the intense heat and the apparent security of everything. The mob and cut throats rose with the soldiery. They burnt one whole family, from grandfather to grandchildren, alive! Others they killed by inches, cutting off the nose, then the ears, then the fingers, the toes, &c., children, they killed little innocent babes -before the mother's eyes, and then killed her .-And such might have been our case at Benares, had not our officers anticipated the bloody plot of Thursday the 4th. Happily Mrs. and Mrs. Spry and the Missionaries are safe in the fort. Our gallant fellows have sallied and re-taken two of the guns, but two are still in the enemy's hands, and as there are a good many Sikhs on duty in the fort, we are still anxious. To day we have heard there have been two fights at Agra, but we have no particulars. You will be glad to hear that the Reuthers, from Jaunpore, with Mr. J. Cæsar, the catechist, and his wife, are safe in Benares. On Thursday, the 4th, the discomfitted mutineers from Benares set out for Jaunpore. At 8 A. M., on Friday the 5th, two or three ndigo planters rode at full speed into the Reuther's compound, saying, 'Fly for your lives; the Sepoys are upon us!' They hurried off at once to the cutchery, where all the residents were assembled .-The 37th first came up, and seem to have been afraid to atta k them. Meanwhile Mr. Cæsar was walking with Captain Mara, who commanded the Sikhs at Jaunpore. Mr. Cæsar said, 'The 87th are upon us.' 'The 37th!' said Captain Mara, 'what have we to fear from the 37th? our own men will keep them off.' Mr. Cæsar had scarcelly left him when he was struck by a ball from the Sikhs, staggered a few steps, and fell. It seems the Sikhs were afraid to rob the treasury till they had shot their officers. Then they began to pillage, and the residents took that opportunity to be off. Before they went the Sikhs had come up and fired in at all the windows of the cutchery, and they were obliged to lie down on the floor, the bullets whizzing over their heads. Mr. Cæsar saw the magistrate, Mr. Cuppage, lying dead in front of the gaol door. After most had escaped, up came the sowars, on whom we had been relying for our lives at Benares until the arrival of the English troops. They had vowed to murder every European. They came to the deputy collector, an old East Indian. Both Hindoos and Musselmens got around him and said, 'Do him no harm; he has always been kind and just to us.' 'Can't help it,' said the sowars, 'he is an European.' They then repeated this to a sergeant and his wife, though the people pleaded for them and said they were kind and inoffensive. 'Can't help it, they are Europeans.' Providentially the refugees did not take the Benares road, or they would have been cut off, man, woman and child, by these blood-thirsty savages .-They drove to Zjufferabad, and there got on board a native boat to go down the Ganges. They had not gone far when the boatmen, native like, turned against the sahibs in their distress, and refused to convey them beyond a certain village. There they landed them, and they repaired to the police office, and the Benares magistrate, with a party of volunteers and English soldiers escorted them to Benares. the city has revolted and hoisted the green flag .-This makes one think that it is at the bottom a conspiracy of our deadliest foes, Mussulmans, and that they have got hold of the cartridge delusion as a means to stir up the Hindoos."

[From the Lahore Chronicle.] THE EXECUTIONS AT FEROZEPORE.

FEROREPORE, June 13. A friend sends us the following account of the execution of some of the mutineers at that station on the morning of the 12th inst:

"This morning were executed 12 of the mutineers of the late 45th Native Infantry. All the available troops were convened to witness the scene, which took place at the south-east of the Sudder Bazaar, and north of the old Fort-the side of which the mutineers had got in. A gallows had been erected during the night previous, and around it were the troops drawn up; a squadron of the 110th Native Light Cavalry (remnant of the disbanded 57th Native Infantry) and Commissariat and Magazine Establishment on the east, Her Majesty's 61st Foot and Artillery (with 13 guns) on the South, and the City and Cantonment Police on the west. The mutineers (24 I think) were brought into the centre by a guard of her Majesty's 61st Foot. One of the mutineers was brought in a doolie, as his left arm had been amoutated in consequence of a fracture caused by a musket ball fired at him by her Majesty's 51st Foot when with the mutineers he was in the fausse braie of the "Lientenant Hoggan, by order of Brigadier Innes, read out the proceedings of the general court martial which tried the mutineers, and the sentence awarded them, to the troops and establishments .-He then informed the mutineers that if any would become Queen's evidence the brigadier would reprieve them. I believe 12 accepted the offer and were marched to the rear of the artillery. They stated their wilingness to inform upon the ringleaders, and to further divulge secrets to show whence the mutiny originated and with what view. Of the remaining 12 two (one being the man with the amputated arm) were taken to the gallows. They ascended the ladder with firm steps, and never betrayed any emotions of fear. On gaining the platform they adjusted the noose with their own hands; their eyes were then bandaged and their arms pinioned. Another second, and they were launched into eternity.-Death was instantaneous with one, but the one-armed culprit lingered out for a considerable time, as the knot slipped under his chin. The hangman had to readjust the knot, and giving him another drop the throes of the body rapidly ceased, and the vital spark soon became extinct.

"The other 10 mutineers were led away to the artillery guns, but while their irons were being struck off some cried out, 'Do not sacrifice the innocent for the guilty." Two others, 'Hold your snivelling, die men and not cowards-you defended your religion, why then do you crave your lives? Sahibs! they are not sahibs, they are dogs.' Some more began to upbraid their commmanding officer. "He released. the Havildar Major, who was the chief of the rebels. The 10 men were fastened to the muzzle of 10 guns, which were charged with blank cartridge. The commanding officer directed portfires to be lit .-'Ready !' 'Fire !' and the drama is played out.

The scene and stench were overpowering. I telt myself terribly convulsed, and could observe that the numerous native spectators were awe stricken that they not only trembled like aspen leaves, but also changed into unnatural hues. The lesson, we trust, will not be lost upon them. Precaution was not taken to remove the 'sponge and look men' from near the muzzles of the guns; the consequence was, that they were greatly bespattered with blood, and one man in particular received a stunning blow from a shivered arm."

The following paragraph from the Chicago Times gives an idea of how harvesting is done at the

"A friend of ours says that one day last week he went up to the top of a hill called Mt. Zion, six miles from Janesville, Rock Co., Wis, and counted on the surrounding plain one hundred and sixty four horse power reaping machines, busily cutting down wheat. There were one thousand men, women and boys following after, binding and shocking up the golden sheaves. It was a sight worth seeing, to behold the grain falling and being gathered up at the rate of two hundred acres per hour."

A SHEKEL.—The editor of the Selma Sentinel has been shown a silver shekel, which was struck in a mint of Judea 1750 years ago. The coin which is the property of an Israelite living in Selma, in whose ally it has been 500 years, is about the size of a half dollar, but the silver is so impure that its intrinsic value is but fifteen cents.

SALISBURY.

Letter from the Senior Editor of the Fayetteville Observer

SALISBURY, Aug. 11, 1857. Feeling tolerably well to day, but unable to start to Morganton till to-morrow, (the stage running but three times a week,) I have had an opportunity of seeing every thing of interest about this place. An old Fayetteville friend kindly called with his carriage and took us through the part of the town where the best dwellings are located, and thence into the country to other points of interest. In the "west end," or fashionable region, we passed the residences of Judge Caldwell, Judge Ellis, Hon. Burton Craige, Francis Shober, Esq., John D. Brown (a Fayetteville boy who does honor to his bringing up) and his partner Mr. Coffin, Mr. McRorie, Dr. Summerell, and three editors-Mr. James, Mr. Bruner, and Mr. Cannon. Several of them are beautiful lots, and all good houses. We next rode out to a Bridge on the Western railroad, which is one of the noblest specimens of masonry I have seen. It is a about 30 feet high, I suppose, and about 100 feet long, consisting of two arches, and built of enormous blocks of granite, obtained from a quarry about four miles distant. It cost about $30,000, and looks as if it would stand any thing short of an earthquake. It is on the stream from McKay's mill pond, and just below the mill. That pond covers about 600 acres, and in passing it we felt sensibly the balmy breeze which came to us over so large a body of water. We passed at several points the track of the Western road, in various stages of grading, some complete and some with hands at work. A part of the route to Morganton, perhaps as far as Statesville, will be finished within a year. This would reduce the stage ride to about 54 miles, instead of 80, thus making it very tolerable, by enabling the traveller to reach Morganton from this place in a day, instead of a day and night. When completed to Morganton, and still better to Asheville, and when our coa fields road is extended to the N. C. road, (all of which I regard as certain, sooner or later,) there will be throngs of low-country people among our western mountains, year after year.

In returning to town from the railroad bridge, we visited a planing machine and sash and blind factory, and met there Mr. Cairns, one of the proprietors. This establishment is propelled by steam, and is the fourth steam factory I have seen to-day, all originated since the railroad was built. It is an indispensable establishment in a town where so much ouilding is going on.

So also is the Foundry and Machine Shop of Messrs. N. Boyden & Son, which I have already mentioned, and through which I liave been politely shown by the sole manager, Mr. Ira Reynolds. It works between 20 or 30 hands, besides a 24 horse power steam engine, which I suppose does the work of fifty hands. It is employed in the manufacture of agricultural implements, mill and machinery castings, iron turning, blacksmithing, &c., &c. I saw there large numbers of plows, of a greater variety of patterns than I supposed existed, every part of which was made in the building. There were ripping, cross-cut and upright saws; boring, tenoning, planing and turning machines; machines for planing, dressing, and cornering irregular timbers for all the implements they make. These are all in successful operation, and the Manager boasts, I have no doubt with reason, that there is no similar establishment any where, fitted up with machinery and patterns so perfectly arranged for making work quickly, cheaply and well. All the machinery is propelled by a steam engine made by Burden & Co., Brooklyn, N. Y. The main building is 126 by 30 feet, besides engine room, foundry, furnace, &c.

Among the gold mines, factories, mines, workshops, &c., of all this active region, there must be the perfection of its work will doubtless secure it abundance of custom. Lastly, by invitation of one of the proprietors, (Messrs. Myers,) I spent an hour in a new place, to me,-a whiskey distillery,-which is one of the objects of curiosity in this place, and one of the improvements, (speaking without reference to our Temperance friends,) which has sprung up in consequence of the railroad. Here I found the steam engine again, doing its work with matchless power and skill. There are several buildings, situated in a beautiful oak grove, about a mile from town. At present there are only ten or twelve hands employed and about 300 gallons of whiskey made each day; but when grain becomes plenty and cheap, the number of hands will be doubled, and the product increased to about 1000 gallons a day. I cannot describe the machinery, which is altogether different from the old worm stills which I used to see when a boy, a long time ago. The whiskey is made from corn, rye, or wheat, more of the latter now than of the two former, for wheat is now very abundant, and materially reduced in price. I am informed that a good article was bought to day at $1 a bushel. One of the great sources of profit from these whiskey distilleries, is the fattening of hogs on the swill from which the spirit has been extracted. (I suppose from this that the hog don't like liquor.) The 450 hogs here undergoing this stuffing process seemed to be as happy as the day is long, with nothing to do but to eat and lounge on the board floors of their pens or sheds. They were so full and lazy that it was not easy to get them on their legs. If people will drink liquor, they may as well get that which is honestly made at home, instead of the poison which is sent to all parts of the country from Ohio, New York, &c. There is more regard for human life at the South than to put poison in whiskey. These gentlemen, I understand, have offered a large reward for the detection of any drug in

Since I have been here I have seen many wagon loads of wheat delivered at the depot, for transportation. With the exception of a little flour, I have seen nothing but wheat brought there. I am told that the railroad has so stimulated production in this part of the State, by increasing the facilities and diminishing the cost of getting to market, that the quantity sowed is double what it formerly was.

A Contrast.—The steamer yesterday from Europe brought intelligence of the death of two individuals who have both distinguished themselves in the literary world, but in such diverse directions that their demise suggests thoughtful reflections .-We refer to Eugene Sue and Dr. Thomas Dick. The former is well known as the author of a number of brilliant but voluptuous novels which are universally regarded as pernicious in morals, and evil, and only evil, in their tendency. He was a defender of the worst form of French socialism, and though pretending great friendship for the poor and extreme sympathy for their misfortunes, lived himself in the most princely style, and surrounded with all the luxuriousness of a voluptuary sensualist. His principal works are "Mathilde," "The Wandering Jew" and "The Mysteries of Paris," all of which have been more successful in France than in this country. In all his writings he paints vice in its most glowing colors, and though virtue usually triumphs, yet vice is made to look exceedingly attractive and harmless. He wrote to stimulate the passions of others and lived to foster his own. He dies, aged fifty-two, in the midst of his magnificence, leaving behind him a heritage of pernicious books-a sad monument to perpetuate a bad name.

How different the case of Dr. Dick, the author o 'The Christian Philosopher," "The Improvement of Society," &c., &c. At Broughty Ferry, on the Dundee, we see an old man at the advanced and honorable age of eighty-three, quietly sinking to rest after a life of great usefulness but of moderate recompense. For thirty or forty years he had lived in retirement, his works hardly netting him sufficient for his support, yet with a calm and genial heart he il for what he received, and might, with true satisfaction, look back upon a well-spent life and have the pleasure of knowing that he had not written a line which

"Dying, he would wish to blot." His life affords a salutary example to the world, and his writings will perpetuate his memory and do good to the latest generation, for truth and virtue are indestructible. Sue and Dick-what a world wide contrast between them! Who can estimate it? New York Day Look.

OUT UNDER ARMS. - A ragged individual was saluted a few days since by a little urchin, thus : "I say, you, sir, don't you belong to the army?" "Not" was the indignant reply. "Well," said the boy. "I thought that you did, as you are out under arms."

Firs in Wilmington, N. C.—About 2 o'clock this morning, a fire broke out in a warehouse in the rear of a block of two-story frame stores, on Water street, midway between Princess and Chesnut streets, oc-cupied by Messrs. Evan Bevan, A. Kaufman, J. & H. Samson, and Walker & Stevenson.

In a short time the buildings owned by O. G. Parsley, Esq., and Mrs. Noyes, were consumed, and the fire crossed over Water street to some one-story frames owned by Mr. Parsley, and occupied by Messrs. Bauman & Grotjen, J. & H. Samson, and by These buildings with their contents were pretty soon in flames and destroyed. The fire spread North to a block of brick buildings owned by Mr. Parsley, and occupied by Messrs. Alderman & Bizzell, J. & D. McRae & Co., Russell & Bro., and Captain Owen Burns.

The store occupied by Captain Burns was com-pletely destroyed—that occupied by Russell & Bro., somewhat injured, and Messrs. J. & D. McRae & Co., and Alderman & Bizzell, suffered more or less loss from water, from the taking out of their goods, etc. On the South, the brick store occupied by Messra.

McDuffie & Co., and J. J. Lippitt, was considerably scorched, and some loss from tumbling things in and out. The store belongs, we believe, to F. J. Lord, Esq. The wharves are considerably injured,—per-haps to the amount of two or three thousand dollars, or even more than the largest of these sums.

We can hardly make any accurate or even proximate estimate of the value of the naval stores and other produce on the wharves, which were destroy-ed. Four to five thousand dollars is about as good a guess as we can make. Daniel L. Russell, Esq., is the heaviest loser in this way.

The Rock Spring Hotel on Chesnut street, be-tween Front and Water streets, owned by Mr. Parsley and occupied by Mr. Alderman, although in great danger, escaped with a sharp scorching. A frame kitchen attached to it was totally destroyed. Commencing at the Northern limit of the fire, we place Messrs. Russell & Bro.'s loss at about $3,000, covered by insurance. Captain Owen Burnt $2,500 to $3,000,-also covered by insurance; Mr. Bevan, $1,200, no insurance; Mr. Kaufman, we believe, places his loss at about $2,000—insured; Messrs. J. & H. Samson had a heavy stock of goods, but the amount of loss cannot now be reached-insured. In the store occupied by Messrs. Stevenson & Walker, Mr. W. T. Huggins had hay and some other articles, which were lost to the value of something like $500. Messrs. Beauman & Grotjen's loss will be between $5,000 and $6,000, of which $8,500 is covered by

All the buildings burned or seriously injured, be longed to O. G. Parsley, Esq., and Mrs. Noyes. Mr. Parsley is the heaviest loser. The buildings them selves were not, intrinsically, of much value, but as it is not allowed to put up wooden buildings in that part of town, the cost of replacing them with brick edifices will be quite heavy. We believe Mr. Parsley had no insurance.

Of course, considerable loss by water, abuse, breakage, and, we fear, stealage, was sustained by other parties, whose premises were not actually reached by the fire. There seems to be every reason for believing that the fire was the work of an incendiary. But, as we understand the authorities have instituted, or are about to institute an investigation, we forbear remark Journal 24th

ON THE ELEVENTH (11TH) DAY OF NOVEMBER next, at the City of Morehead, will be cold at public auction, the lots of said city.

The various Reports of the U. S. Coast Survey establish the great excellencies of this Harbor, for facility of entrance, depth of water and security from wind and wave, whilst Fort Macon completely commands the entrance.

The interior communications by water and land must make this a great commercial city. The vast productions of the fertile valleys of the Roanoke, Tar and Neuse Rivers, and the commercial city.

and the commerce of those great inland seas—the Albe-marle, Currituck, Croatan and Pamlico Sounds, will reach this fine harbor through Core Sound on the north, whilst Bogue Sound will bear on its bosom the agricultural pro-ducts, lumber, paval stores and fine ship timber of the regions lying south.

The A. & N. C. Railroad which will be ready for use by the first of January next, passes through the entire length of the city to its wharf in 18 feet water at low tide, and connects with the great N. C. Railroad (of which it is a continuation) at Goldsborough.

The N. C. Railroad, among the best in the Union, 228 miles long, is completed to Charlotte, where it connects through the South Carolina and Georgia Railroads with Atlanta and the south-west ; and by its western extension, now in rapid progress, it is contemplated to reach the trade of Memphis and the Mississippi Valley by the net-work of all the railways that cornect at Atlanta, Chattanooga, or with the East-Tennessee Railroad.

The port of Beaufort, Chattanooga, Memphis and St. Diego in the Pacific, are about the same parallel of latitude; and if that parallel be exiended across the Pacific, it will reach Shanghai, the newrest great port on the eastern continent: therefore, if the Pacific Railroad ever be constructed, (and that should be done forthwith) why may not this new city become the Atlantic mart for the commerce of the East Indies?

Two short railroads will connect the two great Coalfields of the State, lying on the north and south of the North-Carolina Railroad, with that road; and it is confidently expected that a vast coal trade will be carried on through the new city; if so, may not Beaufort become a great coaling port, not only for purposes of commerce, but to furnish the supplies to steamers passing so near the entrance going north and south; and may not the new city become that great "entre depot" between the north and south, to which our able and distinguished countryman, Lieut. Maury, re-fers in his unrivaled statesmanlike paper on the commerce of the Amazon, South America and the Gulf of Mexico? The city of Morehead is situated on a beautiful neck of land or dry plain, almost entirely surrounded with salt water; its climate is salubrious; its sea breeze and sea-bathing delightful; its drinking water good, and its fine chalybeate spring strongly impregnated with sulphur, will make it a pleasant watering place.

As not a single lot has been or will be sold until the day of sale, all will have an equal chance to get the best lots and to suit themselves.

It will be the first instance of an entire new city on the Atlantic coast being brought into market at once; and capitalists may never have again such an opportunity for good investments, for a great city must and will be built at this

The College is located within thirty steps of the Charity Hospital, an advantage not possessed by any other College The Faculty of this Institution are amongst the duly elected Visiting Physicians and Surgeons of the Charity Hospital, and seconding to a late Act of the State Legisla-ture, "shall at all times have free access to the Hospital, for the purpose of afforcing to their Pulpils practical illustration of the subjects they teach." The great aim of this Institution is, not only to thoroughly inductrinate the Student of Medicine in the funds principles of Medicine by abstract Lectures, but, by drill-ing him daily at the bedside of the sick man, to send him forth at once qualified to recognize and to treat Disease. For this great purpose, the Charity Hospital, situated at our very door, affords opportunities unequalled in this The Faculty can confidently assert that dissecting materiis more abundant in New Orleans than elsewhere, and that Practical Anatomy will be thoroughly taught in this Institution. Besides spacious, well-ventilated and well-lighted Dissecting Rooms for the use of Students, a large and well-arranged private Dissecting Room is fitted up for the es highly beneficial, and in others effected a decided cure.

This is a purely vegetable compound, prepared on strictly scientific principles, after the manner of the celebrated Holland Professor, Bærhave. Because of its great success in most of the European States, its introduction into the United States was intended more especially for those of our fatherland scattered here and there over the face of this states with great success among them. mighty country. Meeting with great success among them, I now offer it to the American public, knowing that its truy wooderful medicinal virtues must be acknowledged.

It is particularly recommended to those persons whose constitutions may have been impaired by the continuous use of ardent spirits, or other forms of dissipation. Generally instantar cous in effect, it finds its way directly to the seat of life, thrilling and quickening every nerve, raising up the drooping spirit, and, in fact, infusing new nealth and vigor in the system.
NOTICE.—Whoever expects to find this a beverage wil be disappointed; but to the sick, weak and low spirited, it will prove a grateful aromatic cordial, possessed of singular CAUTION!

The great popularity of this delightful Aroma has in-duced many imitations, which the public should guard against purchasing. Be not persuaded to buy anything else until you have given Borhave's Holland Bitters a fair trial. One bottle will convince you how infinitely superior it is to this Seminary that we can greatly aid in the education of young ladies of limited means, especially if they wish to become teachers.

GLEN ANNA PEMALE SEMINARY. THOMASVILLE, DAVIDSON Co., N. C. WE HAVE MADE SUCH ARRANGEMENTS WITH

I. Our plan embodies these leading features: 1st. It proposes to educate such as are not as adequately provided for, if provided for at all, in any other Pemale Institution in the South. 2d. It involves no lumiliating conditions. 3d.
It is a self-sustaining plan. We are governed as follows, in regard to applicants for aid. White we do not confine ourselves to any class, we will give the preference to, 1st, such as can be qualified in one year to teach. 2d, such as will secure at least one paying pupil for the institution. 3d, the daughters of ministers of all denominations. We require full information as to their age, health, experience in teaching, if any, disposition, manners, piety, and the amount full information as to their age, actively, and the amount ing, if any, disposition, manners, piety, and the amount they can pay in advance on their board and tuition. We will credit a limited number of first class applicants, when necessary, with the entire amount of their board and to ition.

II. We will credit many other deserving applicants with all the expense of their tuition, except twenty dollars a year If they will pay their board, and twenty dollars, annually, on their tuition, and furnish their own books and materials for ornamentals, we will indulge them for the balance until they can teach and pay it. Board is $6 per month, exclusive of washing. Such young ladies as prefer it, can do their own washing; and then the expense of board and tuition to be paid in advance, would not be over $40 per session of five months. The balance would be on time. These loan pupils are entitled to all the privileges of others in the Institution.

And III. We submit some of the considerations which

And III. We submit some of the considerations which should influence all classes to petropize this Institution:

1st. We have greatly reduced the cost of female education. 1st. We have greatly reduced the cost of Remale education.
2d. We are educating a class of young ladies that will be of great benefit to all the other pupils. 3d. Our ability to educate this class will be in exact ratio to the patronage we receive from others. 4th. We shall have teachers of different denominations. 5th. We shall employ teachers compent to the patronage we have been provided by the control of the patronage we have been provided by the patronage we have been patronage when the patronage we have been patronage we have been patronage when the patronage we have been patronage we have been patronage when the patronage we have been patronage when the patronage we have been patronage we have been patronage when the patronage we have been patronage we have been patronage when the patronage we have been patronage when petent to instruct in all the branches, solid and ornamental usually taught in the best female institutions of the South. 6th. THE FALL SESSION OF THIS INSTITUTION will commence on the second Wednesday of September. The managers are now making arrangements for a corps of Teachers which will be inferior to none south of Philadelphia. $6 per month. Tuition per Session for English braches $5 to $15. Music on Piano Forte or Guitar, $20, including use of instrument French, $8. Painting in Oil, $15. Painting in Water colors, $8. All other ornamental work in pro-portion. $1 per Session for incidentals. As the charges are very low one half must be paid in advance.—the balance at the end of the session, or interest will be charged.

This Institution is located in one of the most be moral and industrious villages on the North Carolina Rail Road. There are the present Session, between 70 and 80 pupils, representing six branches of the Christian Church; all worshipping the Most High together in Christian love. This new building is large and well ventilated.

Pupils will be received at any time and charged from the time of entrance; but it is very desirable that all should be present on thefirst day of the Session.

The Seminary is six miles from Normal College, and a daily stage runs both ways. Parents can send their sons and daughters to Thomasville; the sons go on to Noram
